

MERCHANT SUBMARINE TIES UP IN BALTIMORE WITH CARGO OF DYESTUFF WORTH KING'S RANSOM

Vessel Which Makes Dangerous Journey Only
First of Fleet.

REGULAR LINE SOON, IS CLAIM

Captain Paul Konig, German
Commander, Pilots Unarmed Vessel
Through Lanes of Enemy Warships
To Take a Precious Cargo Home.

By Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, July 10.—Definite announcement that the great, grim submarine, Deutschland, which reached Chesapeake Bay yesterday, is the first of a fleet of such craft built to ply regularly in the transatlantic trade, was made here today by Captain Paul Konig, master of the super-submarine.

"This is not the only one that is coming," said the captain. "Just wait;
there will be more here soon and we are going back for another cargo. We are going to have a regular line."

It was to port officials that the captain talked as his vessel was preparing to dock from the lower harbor,
where she dropped anchor at 11 o'clock last night at the end of her memorable voyage across the Atlantic through lanes of vigilant enemy warships. He spoke freely to the officers and laughed over his feat.

All during the night a considerable part of the Deutschland's crew had been astir and a small searchlight played almost constantly upon a newspaper yacht anchored nearby.
The tug Thomas F. Timmons conveying the submarine also kept the yacht under close surveillance.

Shortly after 1 o'clock, when daylight was beginning to show faintly through heavy, low-lying clouds, and a steady drizzling rain, a boat with health and customs officials aboard,
put out from the quarantine station
and went alongside the submarine. T.
the municipal health officer, Dr.
Thomas L. Richardson, the skipper presented his bill of health, issued to him by William Thomas Fee, United States consul at Bremen, on June 11.

The document describes the Deutschland as a vessel engaged in the freight trade between Bremen and Boston, or other eastern Atlantic ports.

It records her gross tonnage as 791,
says she is "newly built," has a cargo of dyestuffs in good condition, and a wholesome supply of water from the Bremen water works.

"One thing the boarding officer
noticed particularly—there were no
torpedo tubes or guns of any description aboard the vessel. They had been told that she mounted two small calibre rifles for defense, but captain Konig was so confident that the vessel was wholly unarmed."

It was learned that the boat left Bremen with her load of about 700
tons of valuable dyestuffs which her owners hope to sell to American manufacturers for a fortune. At Hela-land she waited nine days, leaving there June 23 to plow deep beneath the surface of the North Sea to escape
the watchful eyes of the Allied blockaders. Captain Konig indicated that the purpose of the voyage was to Heigoland was to deceive the enemy, who undoubtedly had heard rumors of
the submarine's coming.

When the vessel was released from quarantine she moved up the river to the pier of the Eastern Forwarding Company, six miles away, to a carefully guarded waiting berth. On the way up she passed a dozen mercantile men lying at anchor. The first, a big Norwegian freighter, dipped her flag,
and her whole ship's company lined up against the rail, raised their rosing chairs which were answered with a will. With another Norwegian and two Dutch ships, the submarine exchanged formal salutes. She moved close by a number of British tramps in silence, observed with eager interest by the English crews.

A force of longshoremen was ready on the dock to begin unloading the cargo, which is to be shipped as soon as possible by the Eastern Forwarding Company to the purchasers, New York chemical companies. Probably only a day will be required to discharge
the submarine will take on the crude rubber and nickel consignments already stored in the pier warehouse
for her return trip.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken to protect the Deutschland. As soon as she reached her dock an army of guards drove away all rovers craft and a huge chain of logs was drawn around her to prevent vessels from approaching within a hundred feet of the ship. On the land side of the dock a high board fence reaching far into the river had been erected. On top of the fence are half a dozen rows of heavy barbed wire, curtained with burlap to shut off all view. No one without a permit was allowed near the entrance to the dock.
"My orders are from my home government," said Captain Konig. "I am sorry, I would like the whole world to see."

Captain Konig issued the following statement:

"The submarine Deutschland, which I have the honor to command, is the first of several submarines built to order of the Deutsche Ocean Rhederei, G. M. B. H., Bremen. She will be followed by the Bremen shortly.

DONOGAL COMES TO BAT WITH A PEACH OF A SNAKE STORY

The prize snake story of the season, that of a rattler which measured five feet in length,
came from Donogal.

David Kestler visited Mount Pleasant Saturday and told about the serpent. He saw it head through the potato leaves,
he says, and slew it with a hoe.

In a bill close by he found 24
small eggs, each of which contained a baby snake.

marline emanated from Alfred Lohmann, president of the Bremen Chamber of Commerce. He brought his idea in the fall of last year confidently before a small circle of friends, and the idea was taken up at once and the Germanlawyer, Kiel, was entrusted with the building of the submarine.

"We have brought a most valuable cargo of dyestuffs to our American friends, dyestuffs which have been so much needed for months in America,
and which the tiler of the seas has not allowed the great American Republic to import. While England will not allow anybody the same rights or the ocean because she rules the waves, we have by means of the submarine commenced to break this rule."

"Great Britain, cannot, however, hinder boats such as ours to go and come as we please. Our trip, passing Beyer, across the ocean, was an uneventful one. When danger appeared we went below the surface and here
we are, safely in an American port,
ready to return in the course."

BERNSTORFF INVESTIGATES.
NEW YORK, July 10.—Count von Bernstorff, ambassador from Germany
to the United States, today sent Baron von Haniel, counsel to the German embassy, to Baltimore to "ascertain the exact status of the underwater vessel Deutschland."

TENTH REGIMENT LOOKS FOR EARLY CALL TO REAL DUTY

Pennsylvania Troops Are Likely to Be Assigned to Patrol Work Promptly.

Special to The Courier.
EL PASO, Tex., July 10.—Rapidly
unleashing themselves to the Texas
climate, members of the Tenth Regiment of the Pennsylvania National Guard are eagerly awaiting orders which will give them a real taste of border duty. The entire Second Brigade is now at Camp Pershing. The Eighteenth and the Sixteenth regiments are camped together, with the Tenth about half a mile away.

After a single night in camp the boys of the Tenth made their grounds appear as though they had been there a month. The cactus had been rooted out, and everything was in applicable order. As the last battalion of the Eighteenth, tired and dusty from their long trip, limped into camp, they were greeted by the strains of martial
music from Chief A. J. McColl's Tenth Regiment Band.

The Western Pennsylvanians were the first guardmen to reach the border
without a long list of complaints to register. Most of the other troops reached the border with various complaints. The Tenth Pennsylvania arrived with nearly a day's supply of grub to spare.

Early on the trip Colonel Coulter
nipped in the bud the soldiers' favorite pastime of distributing hardback souvenirs. He cautioned the boys that they would need all the grub they had before they got to Texas.

WILL USE ARMORY

New Company Not to Be Barred Out of Building.

Efforts to prevent the newly organized military company to use the state armory for drill purposes have collapsed as a result of the appointment of Captain A. R. Kidd as a member of the local board to administer affairs of the state's property in the absence of Company D.

Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart has appointed Dr. L. P. McColmick, Dr. A. R. Kidd and Harry Dunn
members of the Connellsville board.
Over at Mount Pleasant the committee consists of Willis Hutchinson, Nevins
A. Cort and W. E. Evans.

There is no question but that the local committee will authorize the use of the armory by the home guards.

BREAK IS FORESHADOWED.
South American Nations Dispute Possession of Land.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Official dispatches received today in Latin-American diplomatic quarters say a secret agreement has been made between Peru and Venezuela with the object of taking vast tracts of land,
rightful possession of which they dispute with Colombia and Ecuador.

Grave fear for the peace of the nations involved were expressed.

PRESIDENT TELLS SALESMEN HE ISN'T TO FIGHT MEXICO

Wants Business Men to Establish Confidence South of Border.

NOT GOING TO HELP EXPLOITERS

Wilson Says He Will Try to Serve All Americans by Trying to Serve Mexico Heretofore Country May Do As It Pleases With Its Own Government.

By Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., July 10.—President Wilson announced great enthusiasm at the World's Salesmanship Congress
today by urging that business men carry justice and fair dealing into the port of the world, particularly those of Mexico, and thereby establish confidence in American principles. His efforts, he declared, will be to serve all America by serving Mexico herself for her best interests, without using force, and not to serve the few
"gentlemen" who wish to exploit Mexican possessions.

When the President asked the crowd
what he desired at the end of all the present world trouble, he shouted,
"Peace" in one voice, and then he added this his wish was "permanent peace."

"I hear some men say," he said, "that they want to help Mexico and the way they propose to help her is to overwhelm her with force. That is the wrong way as well as the long way."

"After fighting them you have a nation full of justified suspicions. Thus, you would not help them. You would shut every door against you."

"What makes Mexico suspicious is that she thinks we do not want to serve, but possess her, and she has justification for these suspicions in the way some gentlemen have sought to exploit her possessions."

"I will not serve these gentlemen,
but I will serve all Americans by trying to serve Mexico herself."

"The way to establish our sovereignty
is to respect hers."

The President added he believed in the old Virginia bill of rights which declares that a country may do as it
pleases with its own government.

This information, the President said,
is for those gentlemen who would
"but in."

After speaking at the salesmen's congress President Wilson was to hold a public reception. This afternoon he is to visit an automobile factory. He will leave for Washington at 4 P. M.

ARMY PLANS SECRET
No Information Being Given Out About
the Mobilization of Recruits.

Advices from Harrisburg state that announcement of the details for the proposed camp for recruits to be established at Mount Gretna after all the guardmen leave for the border will not be made until information is received from the War Department regarding the scope of the work to be undertaken. Until further information is received there will be no appointments of officers to administer
the camp.

The general belief is that there will be no provisional National Guard organized. If any units are formed they will only be for the period on the guardmen return and only in such places where the state owns armories.

AUTOMOBILE IS WRECKED
Pittsburgh Men Slightly Injured in Collision with Bridge at Trotter.

Five Sewickley men traveling in a Packard automobile were slightly injured and the car practically wrecked
when they ran into the bridge at Trotter last evening. The automobile was headed for Connellsville, and at the Trotter bridge, the light from the approaching 11-15 street car blinded them, causing them to lose control of the machine.

The men were R. T. Frick, D. M. Gilmore, A. Luce, J. M. Hayes, and H. G.
Walker, all of Sewickley. The damaged automobile was removed to the Connellsville Garage. The automobile had a miraculous escape from serious injury.

FRENCH LAUNCH A NEW ATTACK; TAKE TRENCHES

War Office Claims Capture of Line
Over a 500 Meter Front in Champagne.

By Associated Press.
PARIS, July 10.—A new attack was launched in the Champagne last night.
The war office today announced the capture of trenches over a front of 500 meters.

On the Somme front the French took a line of German positions in the neighborhood of Dardex. In this section 950 Germans were captured yesterday and last night.

The Germans made attacks at five points simultaneously in the Vosges,
but all their assaults were checked
completely by the fire of French machine guns.

The French attack in the Champagne was made at a point west of Nevill. The French troops charged three times.

On the Somme front, north of the river, the night passed quietly.
In the Verdun sector artillery fire
and Lalauze.

ALLIES WILL BE ACTIVE.
WASHINGTON, July 10.—The fact that boarding officers found the German merchant marine Deutschland wholly unarmed goes far toward implying any question as to her status as a merchant ship in American waters.

Officials realize, however, that the British and French embassies, while interested little in what the Deutschland has brought over, are concerned
over the cargo of rubber and nickel
she proposes to carry back to Germany and expect that nothing will be left undone by Germany's enemies to prevent or hinder her clearance.

SEARCH AT STANDSTILL
Latest Suspect in Brett Murder Case
Answers Description.

The hunt for the murderer of little Leo Brett is at a standstill today.
A new suspect has been taken in Uniontown, and is said to answer the description perfectly.

No new suspects have been taken here. The three men who were listed to Uniontown Saturday were not positively identified, but will be held there until the murderer is found.

Ernest Trump notified the police yesterday that he had found a man answering the description, but when the police arrived they found that such was not the case. The man had arrived at Trump's suspicion by carrying shears and other cutting tools with him, but as he is a tailor, these things can not be held against him. The prisoner will be held two days' street work.

of the new cases were in Manhattan,

BULL MOOSERS TO WITHDRAW TICKET AND BACK G. O. P.

New State Committee Will Decide Program at Harrisburg.

KEPHART IS LIKELY TO LAND

Will Replace Clark of Washington as State Treasurer Nominee; Knox, Snyder and Congress-at-Large Candidates Also to Get Indorsement.

The first and probably the last meeting of the new state committee of the Washington party will be held in Harrisburg at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The purpose of the meeting is to induct the candidates of Hughes and Fairbanks, and substitute
the Republican ticket for the one nominated by the Washington party in the primaries.

The Washington party state nominees cannot be forced off the ticket
unless they are willing to withdraw,
but it is believed that these men will follow the leadership of William Flinn
and get back into the Republican ranks. The only comment he would make on the action to be taken tomorrow is, "It is up to the state committee of the G. O. P. to decide the way for the Bull Moosers in the past four years and is not likely to experience much difficulty in bringing about the dissolution of the party. If the program works out, the following substitutions will be made tomorrow:

Philoander C. Knox, Pittsburg, Republican nominee, replacing Mahlon
H. Myers, Johnstown, for United States senator.

Harmon M. Kephart, Fayette, Republican nominee, replacing J. V.
Clark of Washington for state treasurer.

Charles A. Snyder, Schuylkill, Republican nominee, replacing Isaac B.
Brown, Corry, for auditor general.

Colonel Thomas S. Crago, M. M.
Garland, Joseph McLaughlin and John R. K. Scott, Republican nominees, replacing S. Jarvis Adams, Jr., Robert C. Ball, Fred Brackman and Arthur G. Graham, for congressmen-at-large.

If Kephart is endorsed it will leave him with only one real opponent, the Democratic nominee, as he already has the Bull Moose nomination.

While the Washington party column
will appear on the ballot this fall, it is not likely that many voters will put their marks in that square. Mr. Flinn and the other Progressive leaders have announced that they will vote in the Republican square, following the leadership of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. As a Washington party nominees will not be of much value,
it is probable there will be many voters in the congressional, senatorial and state representative districts.

NOTIFY HUGHES JULY 31
Occasion Will Be Made Harmony Gathering of Leaders.

By Associated Press.
BRIDGEHAMPTON, N. Y., July 10.
The official notification of Charles Hughes that he has been chosen Republican Presidential nominee will occur on Monday afternoon, July 31,
at Carnegie Hall, New York, according to present indications, and it will be utilized to bring together in a harmonious gathering leaders of the Progressive and Republican parties from all over the country.

Soon after the notification Mr.
Hughes will start on his western campaign tour, going to the Pacific coast and returning to the east in time to swing into Maine on the eve of the state elections there. So important is a Republican victory regarded in this,
the only state in which there will be a contest preceding the national election, that it is possible besides Mr.
Hughes, Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft may stump, either with or following Mr. Hughes.

Have the Cause Removed. Do you know that nine cases of chronic disease out of every ten are caused by displacements of the bones of the spine? Do you know that lack of appetite, false craving for food, or the desire for unwholesome and rich foods is caused by under nourishment of the system, resulting from spinal derangements? Do you know that Chiropractic, the science of placing the vertebrae of the spine in place by hand adjustment, removes the cause of stomach trouble, kidney, liver and bladder trouble, rheumatism, headaches, colds, and debility, and strengthens the entire system, thus enabling it to throw off the germs of acute diseases? It will pay you to call and receive a free examination of your spine. Serious consequences in the future may thus be avoided. Office second floor of Woolworth Building. NICE JOB OF TAX COLLECTOR GOES BEGGING AT VANDERBILT

Nobody Seems to Want the Job, Although It Would Yield Nest Sum.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, July 10.—Who wants a nice job as tax collector? Don't all speak at once. Just see the county commissioners about it. There's a job awaiting the lucky man. Yes, it's in Vanderbilt. Disappointed? No one seems to want the job of collecting the taxes in Vanderbilt borough. There's $1,226.35 to be collected for the county, and of course, there's the borough and school taxes which must be collected. Unless Vanderbilt gets a tax collector soon there will be no money to pay the school teachers, janitors, police, etc., this fall.

William Johnson, Jr., was the tax collector last year. He does not want the job again, and failed to file a bond to qualify for the position as required by law. No petition has been presented asking for the appointment of any of Vanderbilt's citizens for the office.

In the thriving borough of Vanderbilt there are 353 taxable persons. The total valuation is $206,150. The taxes assessed for Vanderbilt for 1916 are: County tax, $618.39; road tax, $35.30; poor tax, $206.19; tax on money at interest, $92.37. In addition there are the borough and school taxes. The county pays a commission of two per cent on all taxes collected the first 90 days after the duplicate is turned over to the collector and five per cent commission on all taxes collected after 90 days following the receipt of the duplicate by the collector.

Unless Vanderbilt gets a tax collector before September 5, persons who failed to pay their county taxes last year will be unable to vote in Vanderbilt at the November election.

ARMY ENGINEERS REJECT

PLAN TO DAM THE YOUGH.

Do Not Think Prospective Traffic Would Justify Blackwater-ing Stream.

The board of engineers of the United States Army, to whom was referred the matter of deciding upon the desirability of making blackwater improvements in the lower Youghiogheny river, has reported adversely on the proposition.

Early last month a delegation of McKeesport citizens, accompanied by Colonel E. E. Robbins of Greensburg was accorded a hearing at Washington. A report prepared by Colonel Frederick V. Abbot, chief engineer of the United States Army, has just been made public in which the conclusion of the board is given. The report states "that it is not advisable in the opinion of the board, for the United States to undertake the improvement of the Youghiogheny river by the construction of one or more locks and dams."

During the conference at Washington arguments were advanced that by improving the river to West Newton large quantities of coal could be shipped by the water route. In answering this argument the report says: "It appears, however, that the Pittsburgh vein, within reach of the river, below West Newton, is approaching exhaustion and that much commerce could be expected from that source."

Army engineers were advised that many large tracts of land along the river would be available for factory sites after the river has been improved. The report stated that if the work was done it would mean an outlay of $1,000, or more an acre of the government for these factory sites.

PRESIDENT TENER REFORMS PLAYERS

Abuse of Umpires No Longer Feature of National Game.

JOHNNY EVERS IS TAMED.

Boston's Talkative Second Sacker Has Been Forced to Keep Off Arbiters. He Protests Against Rigidity of Rule, but Executive Ignores Him.

Prior baseball is not desired in the National league despite the repeated assertions by Johnny Evers, captain of the Boston Braves, that President Tener is making a prior game of the pastime by checking the players from fighting for every decision they can get on the field. Clean, aggressive sportsmanlike baseball is what is in the order of the day, and it is to that end that Tener is striving.

There is nothing that Tener likes better than a hustling ball player, one who will take advantage of every play that presents itself on the field, but will not endeavor to gain a victory by abusing the umpires. The president does not think that the proper kind of baseball has succeeded in making the main game and players in the league realize it. Only one man, Evers, continues to protest, but he is being ignored by Tener, and the National league is traveling today at a smooth pace, and is furnishing the fans a finer grade of playing than they have seen in years.

Puts Can on Profanity.

profanity to the arbiters that is often heard by the spectators in the stand. His contention is that a ball player can question a verdict without using improper language, and that is what he is striving to improve upon them.

The league has been rid of objectionable players. The result is the games are played with more alacrity and speed. The aggressiveness has not been taken from the team through Tener's drastic instructions. They are playing a higher grade of baseball because their minds are on their work instead of on the umpires and their decisions.

Pay Little Attention to Rulings.

Heretofore players blamed the officials unnecessarily because they were permitted to do so. This was enjoyed by some fans, but more by others. Today the majority of fans do not care who is officiating behind the plate or on the bases and care little what the decisions are, although they may go against the home club. At the time the verdict is given they protest, but after the game few remarks are ever heard concerning the decisions.

Evers has tamed down considerably, although he says it has affected his playing. Helele Zimmerman is not the trouble maker he was before. Miller, Evers, John McGraw, Larry Doyle, Buck Herzog and many others have been forced to realize that fighting the umpires is only a waste of time. McGraw recently said so in New York and does not do one-third the battling he did in the past. There is no difference in the work of his team as a result. It plays and hustles as well as it did when he was assailing the umpires.

National league umpires have had less trouble this season than ever before because of President Tener's strict laws concerning the actions of the men on the field. Not a single man has been suspended to date, and only a few have been fined. This is because the players have learned to take a decision gracefully, and also because the umpires have been instructed to turn a deaf ear to the protests of the players unless there is profanity.

Club owners have also done much to assist Tener in striking the rocky actions of the players on the field. Before the season opened they notified the men that their dues would positively not be paid in the past. If they were punished to the extent of $50 or $100 it would be taken out of their checks. Players do not like to lose any of their pay, and that has helped to tame them.

Forty-eight Strikeouts in Game.

Forty-eight strikeouts, with each pitcher, Selden for Ye Old Taverners, Peoria, and Ackerman for Morion, Ill., totaling twenty-four batters, featured a fifteen inning game at Peoria, Ill., which resulted in victory for Morion, 4 to 3. The Morion team is composed of five right brothers, three Berger brothers and Ackerman, a cousin of the Rapps.

Monkeys Expected to Help in Saving Babies in Fight on Infantile Paralysis

Thoroughly alarmed by the spread of infantile paralysis among the children of New York city and the peril of its attacking the children of other communities, others have already been affected, the federal authorities offered to the city, the aid of the federal health service. Dr. Haven Emerson, city health commissioner, asked, if possible, the release for shipment to the United States of 100 monkeys in the Philippines. In its efforts to solve the all important problem of how infantile paralysis is "carried," the department of health and co-operating research agencies are seriously embarrassed by a shortage of monkeys. The monkey is the only animal upon which tests to identify the medium of communication of the disease can be made. The Rockefeller Institute, however, which was established by John D. Rockefeller to fight infantile paralysis after his young grandson died of the disease, has 100 monkeys collected in the Philippines ready for shipment. Because of disease among animals on the islands there has been an embargo on their exportation. This is why the monkeys have not come New York.

CUTSHAW IS SOME PLAYER.

Brooklyn's Second Sacker Is 'One of the Greatest in Game Today.'

A star at second base means a winning team. So say most of the experts, and the history of baseball seems to prove it.

That being the case, then the Brooklyn Dodgers should be winners, for it

CUTSHAW, BROOKLYN'S NEW SECOND BASEMAN.

there is a more capable second baseman in the National league, or any other league, than the gangling guard of Brooklyn's keystone corner the dope is wrong.

Cutshaw may not be a handsome figure on the diamond, his style of play may not have the grace of Eddie Collins or the fire and snap of Johnny Evers, but he delivers the goods and in large packages.

He is an expensive ground coverer, a dangerous hitter and a brainy disciplinarian of Chadwick. He learned the rudiments of baseball at Notre Dame university, a school that has turned out many a good one.

Before his college days were over he played ball with Bloomington in the "three I" league under the name of Stevens, by assuming the "name" of Stevens, he advanced to Brooklyn, where he has since been a fixture, each season seeing him become more valuable to his team until today, it is repeated, there is not a better second baseman in the game, and doubters have but to watch his work each day to have their minds convinced.

Sires of Many Racers.

Five horses now are the sires of 200 or more trotters and pacers, they being: Allerton, 268; Gambetta Wilkes, 235; Peter the Great, 231; Bingen, 204; Onward, 20. Three of the five trace in the main line to George Wilkes, while Bingen goes to Electioneer and Peter the Great to Lappy Medium. It is almost a certainty that at the end of the present season Peter the Great will head the list, as the four other horses named above are dead. Peter added sixty to his list last year.

GALLERY AFFECTS GOLFERS' PLAY

Stars Should Train to Strengthen the Nerves.

MUST GET USED TO NOISE.

Applause of Good Strokes is Likely to Disturb Work of Opponent in Tournament—Some Suggestions Which Might Be of Help.

Here's a new one.

Suppose you are a championship golfer, getting in line for the national amateur. You are putting in time correcting and lengthening your tee shots, perfecting the cleek and brassie motions and doing some putting on the home green when no member of the greens committee is about. You insist upon all the courtesies of the game and all that goes with it while you are practicing. You insist upon absolute silence, for you know everything depends upon your complete and utter concentration upon the club and the ball.

Well, if you do not you are unusual, for that is the way the game of golf is played. Some persons have said that golf is 10 per cent golf, the rest etiquette. However that may be, the fact remains that there is a lot of etiquette that is.

Here's a New Way to Play.

Well, here's the new one.

Instead of putting down the shades when you start to putt, why not take away a section of the baseball bleachers some day, fill 'em full of popcorn and pep? Have them line up back of you, and tell them to stay just out of club's reach all the way around the course—and of course keeping up their racket all the time.

It has never been done. Nobody would do it even with this suggestion on their minds. But the question has been a bothersome one for a long time. Why wouldn't it be a good idea for a man to get himself familiar with all kinds of disturbances when he is preparing for a big tournament? Hardly his nerves as well as his muscles; train his concentration in that direction, so that he will concentrate without thinking about it when he does confront a gallery?

Play before a crowd you must if you are going to get into the semifinals or finals or any kind of championship, and the more important the tournament the bigger the gallery naturally. Few players of championship caliber have been unaffected by galleries. In fact it is doubtful if there ever was one who wasn't, even if he did not show it on the surface—and there have been more than two or three golf championships won by the men who were less disturbed by the gallery than their better golfer opponents.

As galleries go, the one that had been following Ailsa and Standish put down his bag and he put it up for a 3, and Ailsa should have had a half, for he had a more or less easy putt.

Applause Causes Him to Lose.

As galleries go, the one that had been following Ailsa and Standish put down his bag and he put it up for a 3, and Ailsa should have had a half, for he had a more or less easy putt.

We could not understand this sudden departure, except on the possible ground that Yank, realizing that now the party must split forces, had decided to seek new companions among those lucky enough to sail on the first steamer.

"Even then he needn't have been in such a hurry," complained Johnny, a little bitterly. "And he needn't have thought of me to be in his way."

"Has he paid his share of the lodgings?" it occurred to me to ask.

We felt quite bitter against Yank, and we carefully avoided his usual haunts, for we did not want to meet him. Then we began to think it strange we had not run across him somewhere on the streets. Then we began to look for him.

At that, a little alarmed, we set ourselves to a nervous search and inquiry. A few remembered to have seen him, but were vague as to when and where. The authorities moved sluggishly, and with little enthusiasm. Men were dying every day and disappearing underground, leaving no trace of themselves behind. One more or less seemed unimportant.

In the meanwhile we spent much of our time by the shore, together with those who had thought themselves lucky in being crowded out of the boats. We had engaged and paid daily a boatman to be in readiness to take us off and we settled our lodgings account a week ahead.

"There's going to be a scramble for that blessed ship," said Talbot, "and we'll just be prepared."

To that end we also kept our effects packed and ready for instant removal.

The expected ship came, of course, on one of these dull gray days and those who had thought themselves lucky in being crowded out of the boats were the first to sight her. They sneaked down very quietly and tried to launch two of the boats. Of course the native boatmen were all inside the boat, and as a high surf was running, and as none of the men were in any sense good swimmers, they promptly broached to and filled. The noise brought us to the door.

Then there was a blue row. One of the two boats commanded by the early birds happened to be ours. All our baggage seemed to have been in ruin. The baggage and crew fallen men were just wading ashore when we descended upon them. Talbot was like a raving lunatic.

"You hothead!" he roared. "Don't you dare try to sneak off! You catch hold here and help empty these boats! You would, would you?" He caught one escaping worthy by the collar and jerked him so rapidly backward that his heels fairly cracked together.

Johnny drew to the combat with a chuckle of joy. "Contented myself by knocking two of them together until they promised to be good. The four we had colored were very weak. We all waded into the wash where the boat lay sluggishly rolling. It is no easy matter to empty a boat in that condition. Water weighs a great deal; it is fearful to see, or at least to see so, and has a habit of promptly slopping in again. We tugged and heaved and rolled and heaved until our joints cracked, but at last we got her to heel.

In the meantime forty other boats had been launched and were flying over the waves halfway between the shore and the ship.

Talbot was sweating steadily and with accuracy. Johnny was working like a crazy man. I was heaving away at the stern and keeping an eye on our involuntary helpers. The boatman, beside himself with frantic excitement, jabbered and ran about and screamed directions that no one understood. About all we were accomplishing now was the keeping of that boat's head straight against the heavy wash.

It seemed as though we tugged thus at cross purposes for an hour. In reality it was probably not over two or three minutes. Then Talbot regained sufficient control to listen to the boatman. At once he ordered down.

"Here, boys," said he, "ease her backward." Now, Johnny, stand by at the bow and hold her head on. Frank and I will give her a shove at the stern. When the time comes I'll yell, and you pile right in, Johnny. Vamon, Manuel!

We took our places, the boatman at the oar, his eyes over his shoulder watching keenly the racing sea. The four dipping culprits looked at each other uncertainly, and one of them started to climb in the boat.

"Well, for God's sake!" screamed Talbot, and made a headlong bolt for the shore.

The latter tumbled right out of the boat on his back in the shallow water. His three companions had ineffectually up the beach, where he followed them as soon as he could scramble to his feet.

Manuel said something sharply, without looking around.

"Shove!" screamed Talbot. "Flee, Johnny!"

We bent our backs. The boat resisted, yielded, gathered headway. It seemed to be slipping away from me down a steep hill.

"Jump in!" yelled Talbot.

I gave a mighty heave and fell over the stern into the bottom of the boat. Water seemed to be crashing by, but by the time I had gathered myself together and risen to my knees we were outside the line of breakers and dancing like a gull over the smooth broad surges.

Ships could anchor no nearer than about a mile and a half offshore. By the time we had reached the craft she was surrounded by little boats bobbing and rubbing against her sides. She proved to be one of that very rubbery, bowed type that so commonly in two or three whalers and freighters. The decks swarmed black with an excited crowd.

We roared slowly around her. We were wet and beginning to chill. No way seemed to offer by which we could reach her decks save by difficult climbing, for the gang ladder was surrounded ten deep by empty boats. A profound discouragement succeeded the excitement under which we had made our effort.

"The deck with her!" snarled Johnny. "There's no sense going aboard her. There's enough on deck now to fill her three times over. Let's get back where it's warm."

"If I run across any of those fellows in town I'll break their necks!" said I. "What makes me mad?"—continued Johnny.

"Oh, for heaven's sake shut up!" cried Talbot.

If he had been a little less cold and miserable we probably would have quarreled. As it was, we merely humped over and motioned the astonished Manuel to return to the shore.

The boat's head turned, we dropped down under the bow of the ship. In order to avoid the sweep of the sea Manuel held us as closely as possible under the bowsprit. We heard a hail above us. Looking up we saw Yank bending over the rail.

We stared at him, our mouths open, so astonished that for a moment we did not even think to check the boat. Then we came back in a clumsy circle. Yank yelled at us, and we yelled back at him, but so great was the crash of water and the whirling of wind that we could make out nothing.

Then Yank, motioning us to a cabin where we were, disappeared, to return after a short interval with a speaking trumpet.

"Have you got your baggage with you?" he roared.

We shook our heads and waved our arms.

"Go get it!" he ordered.

We screamed something back at him. "Go get it!" he repeated and wished down his head entirely.

We rowed back to town. It was no longer necessary to return to the exposed beach where we had waited to sight the ship. Johnny and I indulged in much excited speculation, but Talbot refused to show curiosity.

"He's there, and he's evidently engaged us passage, and he wants us aboard to claim it," said he, "and that's all we can know now, and that's enough for me."

Yank met us at the top of the gangway and assisted us in getting our baggage aboard. Johnny and I peppered him with questions, to which he vouchsafed no answer. When we had paid off the boatman he led the way down a hatch into a very dark hole near the bows.

A dim lantern awayed to and fro. Through the dark we could make out a dozen bunks.

"They call this the 'cabin'," said Yank placidly. "Crow sleeps here. This is our happy home. Everything else full up. We four," said he, with a little dash of triumph, "are just about the only galoots of the whole billings at Panama that gets passage."

She's loaded to the muzzle with men that's come away around the Horn in her, and the only reason she stopped in here at all is to get a new thing—a-a-jig of some sort that she had lost or busted or something.

"Well, I don't like my happy home while she's in the harbor," said Johnny. "I'm going to be seashore, as usual. But for heaven's sake, Yank, tell us where you came from and all about it. And make it brief for I'm going to be seashore pretty soon."

He lay down in one of the bunks and closed his eyes.

"You'd much better come up on deck 'to the fresh air,'" said Talbot.

"Fire ahead, Yank, please," begged Johnny.

"Well," said Yank, "when I drove that steamer to the beach it struck me that somebody might want it a lot more than I did especially as you fellows drew blanks. So I hunted up a man who was in a hurry and sold it to him for $500. Then I hired one of those sail rigged fishing boats and hid in grub for a week and went cruising out to sea five or six miles."

Johnny opened one eye.

"Why?" he demanded feebly.

"I was despatched on meeting my old ship that came along a little before the crowd got at her," said Yank.

"And judging by the gang's remarks that just left, I should think I'd deserved just right."

"You bet you did," put in Talbot emphatically.

"It must have been mighty uncomfortable crawling out there in that little boat so long," said I. "I wonder the men would stick."

"I paid them and they had to," said Yank grimly.

"Why didn't you let us in on it?" I asked.

"What for? It was only a one man job. So then I struck this ship and got aboard her after a little trouble persuading her to stop. There wasn't no way of making that captain believe we'd sleep anywhere we could except cash, so I had to pay him a good deal."

"How much?" demanded Talbot.

"It came to two hundred apiece. I'm sorry."

"Glorious!" shouted Talbot. "We're ahead of the game. Yank, you long headed old pirate, let me shake you by the hand!"

"I wish you fellows would go away," begged Johnny.

Thus at last we escaped from the bathos. At the end of twenty-four hours we had left the island of Tobago astern and were reaching to the north.

CHAPTER VII.
The Golden City.

WE stood in between the hills that guarded the bay of San Francisco about a clock of an early spring day. A fresh cold wind pursued us, and the sky above us was blue but the sea ever seen it before, even on the jetties. To our right some great rocks were covered with seals and sea lions, and back of them were hills of yellow sand. A beautiful great mountain rose green to our left, and the water beneath us swirled and eddied in numberous whirlpools made by the tide.

Everybody was on deck and close to the rail. We stared at one another and saw two islands and bays. A shore of green hills. None of us knew where San Francisco was located, nor could we find out. The ship's company were much too busy to pay attention to our questions. The great opening out of the bay beyond the long narrows was therefore a surprise to us. It seemed as vast as an inland sea. We bawled to the wind turning sharp to the south, glided past the bold point of rocks.

We saw the city concealed in a bend of the cove. It was mainly of canvas, hundreds, perhaps thousands of tents and canvas houses scattered about the sides of hills. The flat was covered with them, too, and they extended for some distance along the shore of the cove. A great dust borne by the wind that had brought us in swept across the city like a cloud of smoke. Hundreds and hundreds of vessels lay at anchor in the harbor, a vast fleet.

We were immediately surrounded by small boats and our decks filled with men. We had our first sight of the genuine miners. They proved to be as various as the points of the compass. Big men, little men, clean men, dirty men, shaggy men, shaven men, but all distinct with an eager life and energy I have never seen equaled.

They addressed us eagerly, asking a thousand questions concerning the news of the outside world. We could hardly answer them in our desire to question in return. Were the gold stores really true? Were the diggings very far away? Were the diggings holding out? What were the chances for newcomers? And so on without end, and the burden always of gold, gold, gold!

We were answered with the enthusiasm of an old timer welcoming a newcomer to any country. Gold, plenty of it. They told us in breathless snatches the most marvelous tales. One sailor had dug $17,000 in a week. Another man a farmer from New de over them had gradually pressed them down into the mud until their tops were nearly level with the surface. Naturally the first merry and drunken jolts had shied the lids into space. The pedestrians had now either to stop in and out of the boxes or try his skill on narrow ledges. Next we came to a double row of boxes of tobacco, then to some baled goods and so off on to solid ground.

When we had gained the dry ground near the head of the street we threw down our burdens for a rest.

"I'll give you $10 for those pineapples," offered a passerby, stopping short.

Our companion quickly closed the bargain.

"What do you think of that?" he demanded of us wide eyed and in the hearing of the purchaser.

The latter grinned a little and hailed a man across the street.

"Charley," he yelled, "come over here!"

The individual addressed offered some demur but finally picked his way across to us.

"How do you like these?" demanded the pineapple purchaser, showing his fruit.

"Jerusalem!" cried Charley admiringly. "Where did you get them? Want to sell 'em?"

"I want some myself, but I'll sell you three of them."

"How much?"

"Fifteen dollars."

"Give 'em to me!"

The first purchaser grinned openly at our companion.

The latter followed into the nearest store to get his share of the dust weighed out. His face wore a very thoughtful expression.

We came shortly to the Plaza since called Portsmouth square. At that time it was a wild swampy grassy growth, scrubby enough for ground. On all sides were permanent buildings.

The most important of these were a low picturesque house of the sun dried bricks known as adobe, in which, as it proved the customs were levied a frame two story structure known as the Parker House and a similar building labeled "City Hotel." The spaces between these larger edifices were occupied by a dozen or so of smaller shacks. Next door to the Parker House stood a huge flapping tent. The words "El Durango" were painted on its side.

The square itself was crowded with people moving to and fro. The solid majority of the crowd consisted of red or blue shirted miners but a great many natives and frames of minds seemed to be represented.

We saw the wildest incongruities of demagog and costume beside which the silk hat, red shirted combination was nothing. They struck us open mouthed and gawping, but seemed to attract not the slightest attention from any of the men dressed alike in suits of the finest broadcloth, the coats of which were lined with red silk and the vests of embroidered white. These men walked with a sort of arrogant importance. We later found that they were members of that dreaded organization known as the Roinks whose ostensible purpose was to perform voluntary police duty, but whose real effort was toward the increase of their own power. These people all surged back and forth good naturedly and shouted at each other and disappeared with great importance up the side streets or darted out with equal business from all points of the compass.

We turned across to the doors of the Parker House. Thereafter some search was made we found the proprietor. He, too, seemed very busy, but he spared time to trudge ahead of us up two rocky flights of raw wooden stairs to a loft, where he indicated four canvas bunks on which lay as many coarse blue blankets.

Perhaps a hundred similar bunks occupied every available inch in the little loft.

"How long you going to stay?" he asked us.

"Don't know, a few days."

"Well, $5 apiece, please."

"How long?"

"For tonight."

"Hold on!" expostulated Talbot. "We can't stand that, especially for these accommodations. At that price we ought to have something better. Haven't you anything in the second story?"

The proprietor's busy air fell from him and he set down on the edge of one of the canvas bunks.

"I thought you boys were from the mines," said he. "Your friend here fooled me." He pointed his thumb at Yank. "He looks like an old timer. But now I look at you I see you're greenhorns. Just get here today! Have a smoke!"

He produced a handful of cigars, of which he lit one.

"We just arrived," said Talbot, somewhat amused at this change. "How about that second story?"

"I want to tell you boys a few things," said the proprietor. "I got $50,000 a year rent for that second story just as she stands. That tent next door belongs to my brother-in-law. It is just 15 by 25 feet, and he rents it for $10,000."

"Dumblers!" inquired Talbot.

"You've guessed it. So you see I ain't got any beds to speak of down there. In fact, here's the whole layout."

"But we can't stand $6 a night for these things," expostulated Johnny. "Let's try over at the other place."

"Try ahead, boys," said the proprietor quite good naturedly. "You'll find the same over there and everywhere else." He arose. "Best leave your plunder here until you find out. Come down and have a drink!"

CHAPTER VIII.
Start to Make Money.

WE found the City Hotel offered exactly the same conditions as did the Parker House, except that the proprietor was a cur and had no time for us at all. From it it point, still dissatisfied, we extended our investigations beyond the Plaza. We found our way ankle deep in sandhills on which grew coarse grass and a sort of sage. Crazy, ramshackle huts made of all sorts of material were perched in all sorts of places. Hundreds of tents and been pitched beneath which and in front of which an extremely simple housekeeping was going on. Hunt as we might we could find no place that looked as though it would take lodgers. Most of the better looking houses were simply tiny skeletons covered with paper, cloth or paint. By painstaking persistence we kept at it until we had inquired of every building of any pretensions. Then, somewhat discouraged, we picked our way back to the shore after our baggage goods.

The proprietor of the Parker House greeted us with unfeigned good nature.

"I know how you have feel," said he. "There's lots in your eye. You'll better stick here tonight and then get organized to camp out if you're going to be here long. I suppose, though, you're going to the mines. Well, it'll take you several days to make your plans and get ready. When you get back from the mines you won't have to think about these things."

"There's plenty of gold!" ventured Johnny.

"Bustards!"

"I should think you'd be up there."

"I don't want any better gold mine than the old Parker House," said he comfortably.

We paid him $24.

By now it was late in the afternoon. The wind had dropped, but over the hills to seaward rolled a soft beautiful bank of fog. The sun was blotted out behind it, and a chill fell. The crowds about the Plaza thinned.

We economized our best at supper, but had to pay some $3 for the four of us.

The bill was a la carte and contained such items as juicy steak, angel's elk and wild duck and goose. Grizzly steak, I remember, cost a dollar and a quarter. By the time we had finished it had grown dark. The lamps were alight, and the crowds were beginning to gather. All the buildings and the big tent next door were a blaze of illumination. The sounds of music and singing came from every side. A holiday spirit was in the air.

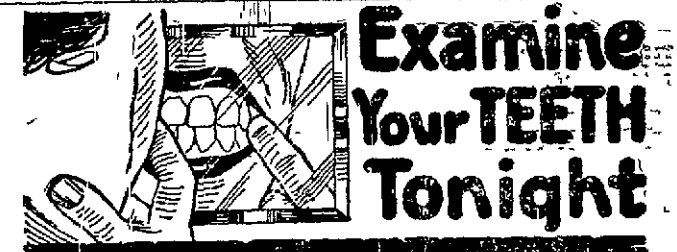

Johnny and I were crazy to be up and doing, but Talbot sternly repressed us, and Yank agreed with his decision by an unusually emphatic nod.

"It is all a lot of fun, I'll admit," said he, "but this is business, and we've got to face it. Sit down here on the edge of this veranda and let's talk things over. How much money have you got Yank?"

"Two hundred and twenty dollars," replied Yank promptly.

"You're partners with me Frank, so I know our assets," said Talbot with tact. "Johnny?"

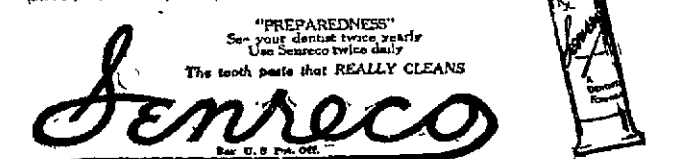

"Hanged if I know," replied that

SENRECO, the recently discovered formula of a dental specialist, is two-fold in its action. "Hanged if I know," replied that young. "I've got quite a lot. I keep it in my pack."

"Well, go find out," advised Talbot. Johnny was gone for some time. We smoked and listened to the rather blantly mingled strains of music and watched the figures of men hurrying by in the spangled darkness.

Johnny returned very much excited. "I've been robbed!" he cried.

"Robbed? Is your money all gone?"

"No, there's a little left, but—"

Talbot laughed loudly.

"Sit down, Johnny, and cool off," he advised. "If anybody had robbed you they'd have taken the whole kit and kaboodle. Did you come out ahead on those monte games?"

Johnny blushed and laughed a little. "I see what you're at, but you're away off there. I just played for small stakes."

"And lost a lot of them. I sort of look out your game. But that's all right. How much did the robbers leave you?"

"Twelve dollars besides what I have in my clothes, $21 in all," said Johnny.

"Well, that's pretty good. You beat

Frank and me to death. There's our total assets," said Talbot and laid a ten dollar gold piece and a dime on his knee.

"We'll call that a curiosity," said he, "for I notice a quarter is the smallest coin they use out here. Now you see that we've got to talk business. Frank and I haven't got enough to live on for one more day."

"There's enough among us"—hegan Yank.

"You mean you already have your share of the partnership finances," corrected Talbot quickly. "It we're going to be partners, and that's desired and understood, I suppose—we all nodded emphatic agreement—we must all put in the same amount. I move that each amount be $220 apiece. Yank, you can loaf tomorrow. You've got your share all made up. You can put in the day finding out all about getting to the mines and how much it costs and what we've need."
